2015 National DIVERSITY WOMEN'S BUSINESS LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE

Position your company as a leader in the advancement of diverse & multicultural women

WORDS OF PRAISE

I was honored to take part in an inspiring opportunity to engage in conversation with leaders who are innovating ideas around diversity and impacting change across a wide spectrum of disciplines.

— Maria Ebrahimji, Journalist, Speaker,
Former CNN Executive Producer

The conference was outstanding – a complete, bases-loaded, out of the park homerun! I left understanding where I am on the journey and what diversity really is. I felt so accepted and in a place of true learning. I absolutely understand collaboration and the “new girl network”.

— Megan Sage, President and Co-Founder, Megaface

The Diversity Women's Conference was one of the best that I've attended. I found myself inspired by all the individuals at the conference and energized to share their valuable insights with my colleagues! I came away with actions that I could take to make a positive impact on diversity in my organization and in my own career.

— Caroline Hon, Principal Program Manager, Operation Support, National Grid

The 2015 Diversity Women's Business Leadership Conference will attract diverse and multicultural business leaders from the world's largest corporations and entrepreneurs from successful women-owned businesses. The executive development atmosphere of the Conference will allow attendees to make strong connections with their contemporaries who share similar work experiences, challenges and concerns. Also, attendees will hear and learn from our panel featuring some of the most influential women leaders in the nation.

Diversity Woman Magazine recognizes the importance of leadership development and empowerment for diverse women. Our aim is to educate and support diverse and multicultural women leaders and to facilitate their continued growth and success through solution-based editorial, website products and services, and events such as our conferences we host annually.

When you sponsor our Conference, you will gain high-level exposure and great networking opportunities in a setting that will allow you to strengthen existing relationships and to forge new ones.

You will obtain high quality multimedia exposure before, during and after the event:

- BEFORE: Through our event marketing campaign, website, press releases, webinars and more.
- DURING: Through networking opportunities, signage, exhibition opportunities and more.
- AFTER: Through advertising in Diversity Woman Magazine and your continued presence on diversitywoman.com.

Please see page 4 and 5 for a review of the various sponsorship opportunities available to you.

Top tips for teleconferencing and videoconferencing

Meetings are ever more likely to be conducted remotely these days, which means you need to get good at presenting yourself via audio and video hookups. These tips can help you get your points across clearly and confidently. For an audio teleconference • Don't be afraid to interrupt, but be sure to identify yourself first so everyone knows who's commenting. • On calls with a lot of participants, mute your phone when you're not speaking
